We've been told about so many good things that are coming up this term that we thought we'd give you an early Christmas present and wrap them all up in an extra edition of the NAPE News.

In the last newsletter, there was information about the recent link-up between BBC Teach and the Beano, and their 500-word. Well if you watched the live podcast recently hosted by our very Mark Taylor when he interviewed Alex Harris, Executive Producer at BBC Teach, you will have heard him mention some other resources coming along.

The first is some really useful animated materials and background information to coincide with the anniversary of Shakespeare's First folio, so click here to access Romeo and Juliet, Macbeth, Midsummer Night's Dream, and The Tempest.

He also mentioned that a new version of BBC Micro: Bits has been launched and you can get your FREE ones by clicking here for much more information about the scheme here. Have fun! As part of their series about the Romans, there will be a live lesson TheVindolandaTrust with Dave Raksha and Ben Shires from. Tune in at 11 am on Monday 27 November as they discover all about the diverse and surprising people who lived at this Roman fort.

Before that they also have a live lesson coming up on November 13th as part of Anti Bullying Week, details can be accessed here.

They have teamed up with the Anti Bullying Alliance, who have free resources available to support your work in this important area.

In a not unrelated area, we have received details of PEGS, a social enterprise set up to support parents, carers, and guardians who are experiencing Child to Parent Abuse, they offer a range of services around this difficult issue, click here for more details.

You also have a chance for your school to win some money while helping to save the planet. The OVO Foundation Nature Prize.

“For a chance of winning, schools just have to tell them how they would use a prize of £1,000 or £200 to bring their students closer to nature. There are 25 chances to win: 10 prizes of £1000 and 15 prizes of £200.”

Which would make for a very Happy Christmas!

More details about all of these things on the NAPE website (<https://nape.org.uk/>).

A reminder that the Rosemary Evans award now stands at £800 if you would be interested in writing an article for our Journal, Primary First. There is a video giving details of this here.

We hope you have had the opportunity to view the latest NAPE videos on YouTube . Subjects range from; 'Enviromental Involvement', 'Racial Justice in Schools' PhD study, the DfE Reading Framework 2023' and the Summit videos on 'Visions for the Future' 2023. A subscription of £10 will secure you all 12 videos including primary school children's view of the future.
